

International
VELUX Award
2010 for students
of architecture

VELUX challenges students of architecture from all over the world to explore and investigate daylight in architecture under the overall award theme Light of tomorrow.

The International VELUX Award is open to creative reflections on the role of daylight in architecture – not just as a design component or external factor, but as a central architectural and sustainable issue.

You can freely investigate the role of daylight in the built environment whether you want to focus on daylight in urban contexts, in individual buildings, or as a more abstract concept. We encourage you to focus on the importance of sunlight and daylight for a sustainable development that is taking human needs and the rhythms and balances of nature into account.

The Award encourages an open-minded dialogue on the light of tomorrow based on experimental approaches and free thinking. The Award has no specific categories or requirements to the use of VELUX products in the projects.

We welcome your participation and look forward to your contribution to the continuous discussion on daylight and architecture.

Read more on velux.com/iva.

Registration opens
1 October 2009

Registration ends
1 February 2010

Submission deadline
3 May 2010

Jury meeting
June 2010

Award Ceremony
October 2010